CURRENCY REFORM NOW STEP NEARER

Conludes Work on Amendment to Pending Bill.

OPINIONS GREATLY DIFFER ON ACTION BY THE SENATE

Deep-Rooted Indisposition to Take Up Subject at Fag End of a Wearisome Session.

By the action of the House committee on banking and currency last evening in concluding the amendment of the pending bill, possible legislation at this session on currency reform has been brought a step nearer. The committee will report the bill to a democratic caucus to be held August 11, and there is every hope that the measure will soon thereafter be under consideration in the

Opinions differ as to the action by the Senate. It is well known that there is deep-rooted indisposition on the part of many senators to take up such a weighty subject as currency revision at the fag end of a long and wearisome session devoted to the tariff. One can hear predictions freely made around the Senate that as soon as the tariff is out of the way Congress will adjourn. But President Wilson has iterated and reiterated his desire to have currency legislation at this session. If he insists senators admit that he may in the end and pass the bill.

hears is this: that the House will pass the bill, the Senate committee will report it, and then it will be postponed to a date certain in next December, when the long session begins.

Senators who advocate this course say that Secretary McAdoo's announcement of his intention to meet the currency stringency at crop moving time should relieve anxiety as to the money situation, coupled with the fact that there is still the emergency currency provision So, with these conflicting views, opin ions and interests, it is difficult to fore-

The committee on banking and currency made very few radical changes in the Stand of Ore Dock Workers in New York Papers Doubt, How- Not Open to Settlement Until bill as it was introduced by the administration, although the public had been led to believe by the pulling and hauling in the committee and reports of friction that the bill was being torn to tatters and patched up again, day by day.

The statement made some time ago by the Commissioners that partisan politics would have no weight in selecting persons to fill the few jobs that are to be handed out has had the effect of bringing about as many republicans as demo crats on place-seeking errands.

Assume Defiant Attitude.

The republicans assume a sort of defiant attitude, and in making their little speeches to Dr. William Tindall, secretary of the board, say, "Of course, I'm a republican, and I didn't vote for Wilson; but politics shouldn't keep an efficient man from getting a place." The democrats lay a good deal of stress on their political affiliations, however, and appear to think that under a democratic administration all the "rascals"-referring to persons of other political beliefstheir names on a public pay roll. > The strong desire on the part of some of the senators to take action of some kind with regard to the situation in Mexico has determined the democratic leaders of that body to adopt a program which includes the passage Monday of two resolutions offered by Senator Fall of New Mexico, it was learned today. The first resolution was introduced by him many weeks ago, calling for information from the State Department in regard to the number of Americans killed, injured or imprisoned in Mexico, and for information regarding American property damaged in Mexico. This resolution has been allowed to slumber in the office of the foreign relations com-

Against Arming Mexicans.

There has been a strong desire in some quarters that the embargo against shipthen both parties in Mexico will be able passed since the new Commissioners fully to arm themselves and tight their battles to a finish, and relieve this country of a great deal of trouble. But one of the senators said today that he belleve, that while there was any chance of this country's being called upon to intervene in Mexico it would be unwise to permit the shipment of great quantities of arms into that country, when these arms might eventually be turned against the United States. While there is still a strong sentiment among many of the senators against intervention in Mexico or the recognition of the Huerta government, or even the raising of the embargo against shipment of arms from this country into Mexico, there is a very commissioner Newman or Commissioner country with regard to Mexico should Siddons get settled down to actual work in resolutions presented to the Senate during the last few days this desire to take some definite action and to lay aside the policy of delay which has

The ambassador has now given his views to both President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, and to the foreign relations committee of the Senate. In brief, his recommendation was recognition of the Huerta government, with
